'Crucial' Hussein talks in Riyadh

iem Post Reporter

King Hussein of Jordan flies to givadh today to meet Saudi leaders for what could be crucial talks on the realignment that is now taking place in the Arah world following Egypt's persection from the front rank of the tringgle against Israel.

The king's journey follows the weeking wish to Saudi Arabia and Jordan by U.S. national security adviser Zhigniew Brzesinski in an attempt to dissuade both conservative kingdoms from taking pmitive measures against Egypt.

Observers noted yesterday that Jordan new finds itself occupying a pivotal position in inter-Arab relations, and that Hussein's con-mitations with King Khaled and prince Fand and other senior faudi high stinutes towards Egypt. Indications so far have been that Riyadh has significantly moderated he attacks on Egypt following Brancheki's visit and observers now believe that the Saudi position could rub off on Jordan.

officials will come at a sensitive

Well-informed sources are not ruling out the possibility that Saudi Arabis and Jordan, together with Guif states like Knwait, Babrain and the United Arab Emirates — which is far as large both physically and politically is far as large both physically and politically is far as large as bloc, which, while not actively at large backing the Egyptian-Israeli peace i more and process, would not join the rejection the American by the page 1 and 1 and Libya.

These sources note that both Jordan and Saudi Arabia are deeply concerned by the implications of the emerging alliance between Damascus and Baghdad, and that neither kingdom can afford to alienate the U.S. by moving too close to the Soviet-backed rejectionists.

The possibility of some kind of Saudi-Jordanian understanding has been given immediacy in the last few days by intensive diplomatic activity by both sides over the weekend. Hussein sent messages to Khaled over the weekend as well as to the rulers of Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and the UAE. Yesterday Jordanian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Hassan Ibrahim returned to Amman after a two-day visit to Kuwait and Bahrain, while Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Sand al Faisal held talks in Bahrain.

Although Jordan has attacked the forthcoming peace treaty and of-ficially demanded the implementa-tion of resolutions passed by last November's anti-Sadat Baghdad summit (calling for the expulsion of Egypt from the Arab League and an economic and political boycott against it) Amman's criticism has been far more moderate than the vicious personal attacks on Sadat in the Iraqi and Syrian media.

Observers believe that the acid test for judging the extent of Jordanian-Saud! coordination will be whether Riyadh agrees to attend a new Arab summit to discuss the specifics of action to be taken against Egypt.

At their meeting at Mafrak in northern Jordan last Saturday, chief Yasser Arafat was reported to have asked Hussein to suggest to the Saudis that they participate in such a summit. If they decline to do so, or suggest a meeting at a lower level, this would add further weight to the assessment that Riyadh is unwilling to come out strongly against Sadat.

Iraq yesterday announced officially that it had invited all 22 members of the Arab League to send their foreign and finance ministers to Baghdad for an emergency meeting next Tuesday, the day after the planned signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty in Washington.

In a speech marking Jordanian Teachers' Day, Hussein yesterday warned that the bilateral agreement between Egypt and Israel "will leave behind a strategic and psychological gap" that would have to be faced by continuing Arab solidarity...and the reorganization of the balance of power through the buildup of the Arabs' own strength.

But the king reiterated that Jordan does not oppose "a just and com prehensive peace settlement, secur ing Arab rights, ending the occupa tion and establishing a just peace.' Such a settlement, Hussein said, would have to guarantee "total Israeli withdrawal, the return of Arab Jerusalem and a restoration of Palestinian rights." He did not mention anti-Egyptian sanctions.

srael's last air link with Far East in doubt

By HAIM SHAPIRO Jerusalem Post Reporter

Israel's last air link with the Far ast will soon be broken, The erusalem Post learned yesterday. Alitalia, the last airline to fly to the ar East from Ben-Gurion Airport, due to end this service on April 1. The Monday flight, which originates Rome, goes to Bombay, ingapore, Sydney and Melbourne.

El Al ended its flights to Teheran arly in January, after Israelis ecame personae non gratae in Iran. France stopped its flights from on-Gurion to Teheran, India, angkok and Hongkong in cember, with the outbreak of Iran's Islamic revolution

An official at Alitalia headquarters in Tel Aviv denied that there were any plans to cancel the flight. However, when this reporter called the company's Jerusalem office and asked to book a flight in mid-April, the clerk immediately replied that the Far East service was ending on April 1. Alitalia's general manager in Israel, Francesco Brancucci, is out of the country.

The chairman of the Travel Agents Association, Yosef Weiss, said that his group had written to the transport minister two months ago to warn him of the possibility that the Far Eastern routes would be closed. So far, it has not received an answer,

Weiss said. Government officials said yesterday that they are aware of the problem and are trying to find ways

Weiss added that Israelis wishing to go to such destinations as Australia, Hongkong and Japan will now have to fly first to Athens, Rome or Istanbul. He added, however, that the flights from these locations often stop in Arab states.

Among the alternative routes which will be open to Israelis are the SAS flight to Japan via the North Pole and a Korean Airlines flight from Paris to Seoul, also by the polar route. Another possibility for passengers to Australia is to go by way of South Africa.

At least one bargain route is still available — the Thai International flight from Athens to Bangkok. However, as this flight goes over Arab states, Israelis will be taking the chance the plane may have to make an emergency landing.

Begin asks Knesset to approve peace treaty

Jerusalem will always be one; no Palestinian state ever

Jerusalem Post Reporter

CF 10704

A Palestinian state shall never rise on the West Bank or in the Gaza Strip, and an undivided Jerusalem shall remain Israel's

These were the two postulates of Israel policy laid down in the Knesset yesterday by Prime Minister Menahem Begin as he asked the House to ratify "A Treaty of Peace Between the Arab Republic of Egypt and the State of Israel.

Two versions of the historic document - 53 typewritten pages in English and 30 in Hebrew translation - were placed on the desk of each of the Knesset's 120 members.

The copies included the preamble. the military and political appendices and the "agreed minutes" to them. the adjunct concerning implementation of autonomy in the administered areas, accompanying letters relating to the exchange of ambassadors, and the American undertakings regarding the duties of UN forces.

As he wound up a two-hour address in his familiar dramatic mode of delivery, Begin asserted: "Dr. Khalil, prime minister of Egypt, has made two declarations. One, that Israel should return to the boun-daries of June 4, 1967, and two, that the eastern part of Jerusalem should be detached from the State of

To these statements by Khalil, Begin replied from the rostrum of the Knesset: "Dr. Khalil, I wish to inform you that Israel will never return to the June 4, 1976 lines. And please make a note of the following — Jerusalem, the united city, is the eternal capital of Israel. Jerusalem will never again be divided and shall remain united forever."

Even after the Knesset approves the treaty and he signs in the name of Israel. "we shall still confront problems of security," said Begin. "With the treaty signed, we shall still have facing us on our northeastern front the following: eight armoured divisions; six mechanized divisions; 15 self-sufficient brigades; 5,920 tanks; 3,320 cannon; 800 bombers and fighter planes; 113 artillery batteries; nine Scud missile launchers; 14 torpedo boats; two frigates; and there is more to the Begin bade the lawmakers to confirm the peace treaty with Egypt and clear the way for "the very serious problem - arrangements for autonomy " - still to be negotiated. "Why is this peace treaty so important?" he asked rhetorically, "This is the first peace pact Israel is ever signing since we proclaimed our state. This is the first peace treaty after five wars in which we have lost 12,000 of our people. "Our aim, our yearning and our dream is to smash this helix of hatred. We must sign this treaty because it is a human act of the highest degree — the first peace treaty in the history of this nation. "We are not crying out in joy, for there is no reason for such a display. We are not flaunting our achievement, since the governments that preceded us also sought what we are presenting here today. Therefore, it is with a modest heart, great love and deep faith that I, in the name of the government, ask the Knesset today to approve the peace treaty between Israel and Egypt."

Begin opened his address by ex-plaining his refusal to participate in

"Camp David Two" summit with Dr. Khalil speaking for Egypt.
"The problem was not one of prestige, said Begin. "Dr. Khalil is a very admirable gentleman. But there is a difference in position between a prime minister of Egypt and a prime minister of Israel, similar to the difference in position between the president of the U.S. and the president of Israel. In America, the president is both head of state and head of government. In Israel, the president does not head the ex-ecutive authority."

According to Begin, the whole peace process could have faltered had he gone to Camp David to confer with Khalii. "He could have given me the same unacceptable proposals he gave to our foreign minister. I would have told him they were imacceptable. Then he would have told me, 'If so, I am returning to Cairo.' To which I would have replied, 'If so, I am returning to Jerusalem.'

> Letters and appendices of Israel-Egypt treaty Pages 5 and 10

"And what would have resulted? We would have brought the whole peacemaking process to a halt for an indefinite period of time. After that halt in the process, would President Sadat have agreed to meet with our foreign minister or defence minister in order to negotiate a peace treaty? Or, would President Sadat have agreed to meet with me? Of course Begin explained the two "unacceptable" proposals that were handed to Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan by the Americans at Camp David Two "either at the concurrence or initiative of Egypt."

One of the proposls sought to qualify Article 6 of the treaty by eliminating its priority over existing treaties to which Egypt is a party.

The other unacceptable proposal was a rewording of the joint "linkage" letter that was to be signed by Sadat and Begin and attached as an adjunct to the treaty, Begin told the House: "When we received a copy of this proposal from Foreign Minister Dayan, Dr. (Meir) Rosenne, the Foreign Ministry's legal adviser, and I read the propos-ed letter and discovered seven glaring deviations from the original Camp David o agremeent - points which we would never have accepted in the first place."

Begin listed the "seven deviations" as follows: (1) The Camp David agreement never differentiated between Gaza and Judea and Samaria:

(2) Israel never agreed that Egypt should come in the place of Jordan as sole negotiating partner for the autonomy issue:

(3) The Camp David agreement makes no mention of a liaison office or liaison officer in Gaza;

Khalil blasts Begin address in Knesset

CAIRO. — The Egyptian government yesterday condemned Prime Minister Menahem Begin's declarations before the Knesset earlier in the day as "inauspicious" for peace. But, when asked whether the hardline speech would affect President Anwar Sadat's plans or the chances of signing the peace treaty, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said, "I don't think so."

In a statement issued by Khalil, the Cairo government insisted that Israel should evacuate all occupied Arab lands, including East Jerusalem, and that the Palestinians be allowed to determine their destiny as part of an overall Middle East settlement.

The Cairo newspaper "Al-Ahram" said Sadat will leave on Saturday for the U.S. and will stay overnight in an unnamed European capital, before arriving in Washington for the signing ceremony expected on Monday. Khalil held a previously unscheduled meeting with U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts to discuss arrangements for Sadat's visit as well as Begin's speech. In the statesaid, however, that Egypt was not really surprised by Begin's remarks to the Knesset. "Any side has the right to make any statements it likes," one source said. Begin told the Knesset: "My dear, honourable Dr. Khalil, write this down: Jerusalem, the one Jerusalem, is Israel's eternal capital. It will never be divided Within a matter of hours, Khalil fired back declaring that what Begin said "contradicts the bases of the peace settlement agreed upon in Camp David and spoils the atmosphere which we had hoped would prevail during the signing of an

'As for the Palestinian question," the statement continued, "the Camp David accord clearly stipulates the necessity of solving the question from all its aspects, thus taking into consideration the legal rights of the Palestinians. It is along this principle that they will decide their future."

Khalil argued that the same principle of "non-acquisition of territory by force" which applied to Israeli withdrawal from Sinai also "is applicable to all the territories, foremost Arab Jerusalem." This principle, he said, was the essence of UN Resolution 242 which is mentioned in the preamble of the proposed treaty. (UPI, Reuter)

The Knesset debate inevitably gave rise to disrespectful thoughts as it wound its interminable progress through the day. Premier Menahem Begin made one of the longest political speeches in the history of the Knesset when he asked the House to approve the draft treaty with Egypt vesterday.

Many parliamentary veterans commented, after hearing him out for two whole hours, that the premier had provided a minutely detailed briefing, and not a statesman's survey on the eve of the signature of the treaty. So there was considerable disappointment and impatience, amid a feeling of deja ru.

Begin spoke as though he were telling the story of the peace negotiations, commencing with the crisis over the invitation to meet Egyptian Premier Mustapha Khalii at summit. He spoke as though the communications media had not yet been invented, reporting to his home community after extensive travels abroad. So much so, that, after Begin described how he had received a call from U.S. President Jimmy Carter on the

tried to prick the balloon with a sarcastic interruption in "Just what time did Carter call?" Some said that Begin probably wanted to make the development of the negotiations into a matter of recorded history, through the Knesset minutes, since this - unlike cabinet proceedings or proceedings in the faction or Knesset committees — was official public material.

It is assumed that next Monday, when Begin addresses the U.S. Congress in Washington in the company of Carter and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, he will make an inspirational address in which he will rise to the majesty of the occasion and voice the aspirations of the head of Israel's government for the period of peace ahead.

Despite the discursive nature of his briefing, given extempore except when he quoted at length from documents. Begin was unhappy when a couple of his ministers started whispering together. He chided them in the gentle sort of tone which parliamentarians know is usually his most effective. After that, ministers did not talk during his speech. If they had no choice, they passed notes to each other.

Would it really be to Israel's advantage if the autonomy plan came to naught? Peres asked. Could Israel then hope to develop normal relations with Egypt? Would the problem of the large Arab population both in Israel and the territories disappear? Would their high rate of natural increase cease? Would their national aspirations erode? Would the Arab world acquiesce?

But above all, Peres asked, did Israel really want the IDF to rule forever over another nation? And this after the government had agreed at Camp David that there is a Palestinian nation that has legitimate rights? A fair solution to the problem of the million Arabs in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza area was essential not only for them, but for Israel itself, so that it would give concrete expression to the concepts of justice of the Jewish people. Peres rejected the prime man of the Foreign Affairs and Defence Committee, said that while everyone hoped the signing of the peace treaty would usher in an era of peace between Israel and Egypt, Israel was paying too high a price.

What seemed to be in store for Israel was not encouraging, Arens said. It could expect the consolidation of the Eastern Bloc against it; a confrontation with Egypt over autonomy, with the U.S. exerting pressure in favour of Egypt's demands; the gradual contraction of its territory in Sinai; and inevitable increased dependence on the U.S.

Arens, who voted against the Camp David agreement had no doubt that there would be an attempt to exploit Israel's increased vulnerability. The concessions made by the government went too far, the risks were too great,

It was high time, Talmi said, that everyone understood that Israel could not continue to rule over a million Arabs that objected to such rule. Autonomy could only be a transitional solution.

Stef Werthelmer (Shai) praised the prime minister, despite his having been in the opposition for almost 30 years, for having overcome his suspicions of Egypt's motives. It was now up to him to instil confidence in the people, who are still suspicious and apprehensive, so that the country can meet the future with con-

ed for a referendum to enable the people to express their view on the peace treaty. Peace with Egypt was not an issue in the 1977 elections, and the government and the Knesset had no mandate to decide so fateful a question. The Knesset had heard Begin's explanations about Article 6 of the treaty, but the fact remained that Egypt was a party to a mutual defence pact with other Arab states.

Abba Eban (Alignment-Labour) said that Egypt must understand what a trauma it is for Israel to relinquish settlements and strategic space, to replace an Israeli military government with Arab selfgovernment. But even more musi Israel erstand the tension involved for Egypt's cutting itself off from the Arab consensus. Never before had an Arab or Moslem ruler dared to do

But it was an illusion to think that Egypt was about to abandon entirely its senior position in the Arab world. Egypt would never accept the sort of lutonomy envisioned by Minister Moshe Nissim which, practically speaking, meant the continuation of Israeli rule, except for a few crumbs of local power to the inhabitants.

Eban said that if the autonomy is implemented as it was meant to be, it can only be a transition to independent Arab rule. That did not bother him, so long as Israel's basic interests were ganteed: defensible be ders and security arrangements. The fact that the treaty speaks of 'autonomy'' rather than independence was entirely devoid of significance. Every process had a dynamic that was not always consonant with the intentions of the for-

He closed with a call -- in Arabic — to the Egyptian people: "Come to the peace process with the same joy, love and good will that we are coming with, for the sake of a better future - in peace!"

Imri Ron (Alignment-Mapam) charged the prime minister with having relinquished security borders in turn for mere promises, and with having ruined the idea of a territorial compromise. The government's autonomy plan would destroy the agreement with Egypt and was likely to lead to a return to the 1967 borders and to a PLO-Palestinian state.

Benzion Rubin (NRP) said that Israel had one thing in mind when it spoke of autonomy, while the other side had in mind something that would lead to a Palestinian state. Why had the promised discussion of the nature of the autonomy been put off? It would have been better to set-tle this matter before signing the peace treaty. The Knesset Finance Committee is expected to authorize today a government recommendation to raise the price of electricity by 13 agora per kilowatt hour.

During the Ministerial Economic Committee meeting yesterday a strong argument broke out between Minister of Industry, Trade and Tourism Gideon Patt and Energy Minister Yitzhak Moda'i, over the electricity hike. Patt demanded that the cost of electricity for industry be raised less than in other sectors, while Moda'i stood firm on his proposal for an across-the-board 13-agora hike. Under the current system, the household electricity user subsidizes the cost of electricity to industry, and Patt sought to change the arrangement of across-the-board hikes.

Begin, Sharon were at odds even before cabinet meeting

By ASHER WALLFISH

Post Knesset Reporter The bad blood between Premier Menahem Begin and Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon surfaced well before Monday's cabinet meeting called to approve the draft peace treaty with Egypt, it was learned in the Knesset yesterday. Last weekend, when Begin was confined to his home with flu, he received information that Sharon had written a set of proposals concerning autonomy in Judea, Samaria and Gaza and was planning to table them in the cabinet. Begin was told that Sharon would demand that the cabinet debate be followed by substantive decisions. He was also told that Sharon hoped to form a common front with the three National Religious Party ministers and with Transport Minister Haim Landau (who voted with Sharon against the treaty). Despite his illness, Begin went about splitting possible unity between these separate elements likely to gang up against him under the autonomy banner. He suggested that Landau be appointed acting premier during his absence abroad. This proved unworkable for constitutional reasons.

More fighting in west Iran between Kurdish rebels and gov't forces

TEHERAN. - Fresh fighting flared yesterday between Iranian troops and Kurdish rebels in the western city of Sanandaj, and the revolutionary government said it had sent military reinforcements to the Eighty-six people were reported killed and 200 wounded during fighting in Sanandaj on Monday.

A cease-fire was declared on Monday after intervention by local religious leaders, but yesterday the national radio, the "Voice of the Revolution," quoted Deputy Prime Minister Amir Enteram as saying fighting had resumed.

Entezam told Reuters later that soldiers and a few transport helicopters had been sent to Sanandaj but gave no figures. He said no tanks or fighter planes had been despatched.

He described the situation in Sanandaj yesterday afternoon as much the same as it was on Monday, indicating the government had so far failed to achieve any breakthrough. Entezam said rebels still controlled the Sanandaj radio station, had taken over the provincial governor-general's offices and were laying siege to an army garrison. It was still not clear how the bloody fighting erupted on Sunday. The Kurds have been pushing for self-determination for many years. One citizen of Sanandaj told foreign reporters by telephone to Teheran yesterday that helicopter gunships were supporting the besieged garrison troops for the second successive day, firing down on Kur-

The rallies hailed former Iranian prime minister Mohammad Mossadegh, who nationalized oil in 1951 and briefly ousted the shah in 1953 before a military coup put the monarch back in power.

In Teheran, a grandson of Mossadegh, Hedayatollah Matin-Daftari, announcing the platform of a new political group, the National Democratic Front, called for autonomy for Iranian Kurds.

Matin-Daftari said his new political group would boycott the forthcoming referendum on whether or not to set up an Islamic republic, unless the wording was changed. Iranians will be asked to vote on

Support for U.S. peace effort at all in UN debate on territories

UNITED NATIONS (AP). - Praise for U.S. President Jimmy Carter's Middle East peace efforts was heard on Monday for the first time in the UN Security Council's debate of Israeli policies in the administered territories. An anti-Israel draft resolution dropped a clause calling for sanctions against Israel.

Addressing the council's seventh session on Monday, Norway's Ambassador Ole Algard urged the council to act in such a way that it furthers and not hinders the cause of peace in the region.

The Norwegian government believed a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel was a first step in the peace process, he said, adding that only recognition of Israel can bring about a just and lasting colution to the region's conflicts. Before the Norwegian spoke, a revised draft resolution sponsored by four non-aligned nations was circulated among council members. While it still calls for the establishment of a commission of council members to make an on-the-spot investigation of Israeli practices in the territories, it makes no mention of possible sanctions against Israel. On Map 1, the islands of Sanafir and Tiran will be outlined by a solid green line to indicate that they are effectively a part of Zone "C". (There will be no other mention of these islands or the green outline anywhere else on the map or in the annex.) (A symbolic representation of the green outline will appear in the map legend and will be labelled "UN force in Sanafir and Tiran".)

5. A symbolic representation of the areas of Zone "C" shaded by green hatch marks will appear in the legend and will be labelled "stationing areas for UN forces "

6. The maps will show the location of all populated places and airfields which normally appear on U.S. maps of the area, but only the major populated areas will be named, Israel and Egypt will agree on a list of pop-ulated places to be so named.

Line D will be shown as a solid blue line running from the Gulf of Aqaba to (the Gaza Strip, and as a broken blue line through the Gaza Strip to) the Mediterranean Sea.

Appendix to Annex I Concepts for Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai

Article I — Principles of withdrawal

1. The withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Sinai will be conducted in two phases as described in Article I Annex I. Detailed plans and timetables for each phase will be developed by the joint commission. Plans and timetables will be presented to the Secretary General of the UN not later than one month before the initiation of each phase of withdrawal. Both parties agree on the following principles for the se-quence of military movements in

A. Until Israeli military forces complete withdrawal from the current "J" line established by the Egyptian-Israeli agreement of Stember, 1975, the terms of th stationing of forces, the zones and lines existing under that agreement will remain in effect, except as otherwise provided for in Annex I and this appendix.

B. As Israeli forces withdraw. UN forces will immediately enter the evacuated areas to establish a continuous zone for the purpose of maintaining a separation of forces and to verify compliance with this appendix and other relevant provisions as may be agreed in the joint commission. UN deployment will precede the movement of any other personnel into these areas. C. Egyptian civil police will enter evacuated areas immediately after the UN to maintain order.

D. Not earlier than seven days after Israeli forces have evacuated any area, Egyptian border units in the strength agreed to by the joint commission may deploy in Zone B up to the UN buffer. Border units will function in accordance with the terms of the treaty.

E. Not earlier than fourteen days after Israeli forces have evacuated any area, Egyptian army units which have been stationed in the II E line, pursuant to that agreement, may deploy into the evacuated portions of Zone A up to the UN buffer. The strength of those Egyptian army units authorized to move forward in each area will be agreed upon by the joint commission.

F. The Egyptian mechanized infantry division permitted in Zone A will deploy into that zone up to the buffer after Israeli military forces have completed their withdrawal to the interim withdrawal line.

Article II — United Nations forces

The parties shall request the secretary general to deploy UN forces as necessary to perform the functions described in this appendix up to the time of completion of final Israeli withdrawal. For that purpose, the parties agree to the redeploy-ment of the UN Emergency Force.

Article III — Joint commission and liaison

1. The joint commission referred to in Article IV of this treaty will function from the date of exchange of in-struments of ratification of this treaty up to the date of completion of final Israeli withdrdwal from Sinai.

2. The joint commission will be composed of representatives of each party headed by senior officers. This commission may invite representatives of the UN when discussing subjects concerning them. 3. The joint commission will supervise the implementation of the arrangements described in the Annex and this Appendix. To this end, and by agreement of both par-

A. Coordinate military movements described in this Appendix and supervise their implementation.

B. Address and seek to resolve any problem arising out of the implementation of the Annex and this Appendix, and investigate and discuss any violations reported by the force and observers and refer to the governments of Egypt and Israel any unresolved problems.

C. Assist UN force and observers in the execution of their mandates. and determine the timetables of the periodic verifications as provided for in this appendix. D. Organize the demarcation of the international boundary and all lines and zones described in the Annac. E. Supervise the handing over of the main installations in the Sinai from Israel to Egypt. F. Determine all necessary arrangements for finding and returning missing bodies of Egyptian and Israeli soldiers.

G. Organize the setting up and operations of entry check points along the El Arish-Ras Muhammed line in accordance with the provisions of Article 4 of Annex III. the parties may place before it.

I. Conduct its operations through the use of joint liaison teams consisting of one Israeli representative and one Egyptian represen-tative, provided from a standing liaison group, which will conduct activities as directed by the joint commission

J. Provide liaison and coordination to the UN command implementing provisions of the treaty, and, through the joint liaison teams, maintain local coordination and cooperation with UN forces stationed in specific areas or UN observers monitoring specific areas for any assistance as needed.

4. Meetings of the joint commission shall be held at least once a month, In the event that either party of the command of the UN force requests a special meeting, it will be convened

5. The joint commission will meet in the buffer zone until the completion of the interim withdrawal and in El Arish and Beersheba alternately afterwards. The first meeting will be held not later than two weeks after the entry into force of this treaty.

Article IV — Definition of the interim buffer zone and its activities

An interim buffer zone, by which UN forces will effect a separation of Egyptian and Israeli elements will be established west of and adjacent to the interim withdrawal line as shown on Map II after implementation of Israeli withdrawal and deployment behind the interim withdrawal line. Egyptian civil police equipped with light weapons will perform normal police functions within this zone.

2. In accordance with arrangements agreed upon by both parties and to be coordinated by the joint commission, Israeli personnel will operate military technical installations at four specific locations shown on Map II and designated as TI (map coordinates ----). T2 (map coordinates -). T3 (map coordinates --). and T4 (map coordinates ---) under the following principles: A. The technical installations shall be manned by technical and administrative personnel equipped with small arms required for their protection (revolvers, rifles, submachineguns, light machineguns, hand grenades, and ammunition), as follows

T1 — up to 150 personnel
T2 — and T3 — up to 350 personnel T4 — up to 200 personnel

B. Israeli personnel will not carry weapons outside the sites, except officers, who may carry sidearms. C. The UN force will operate check points, reconnaissance patrols, and observation posts within the interim buffer zone in order to ensure compliance with the terms of this appendix.

D. The UN shall not enter the perimeter of the technical installations. (The joint commission will determine the times and method of inspections within installation perimeters.) E. Supply of the installations, visits for technical and administrative purposes, and replacement of per-forces from its check points to the perimeter of the technical in-F. Israel will be permitted to in-onnel and equipment situated in the sites, may occur after checking and being escorted by the UN

G. As determined by the joint commission. Israel will be permitted to maintain in its installations firefighting and general maintenance equipment as well as wheeled administrative vehicles and mobile engineering equipment necessary for the maintenance of the sites and to maintain roads within (and to) the sites (and the utilities and communications lines serving the sites). All vehicles shall be unarm-troduce into its technical installations items required for the proper functioning of the in-

H. Movement to and from the technical installations will take place only during daylight hours. Access to, and exit from the technical installations shall be as

(1) T1: through a UN check point, and via the road between Abu Agelia and the crossroad at km. 161 (see map II). (2) T2 and T3: through a UN checkpoint and via the road constructed across the buffer zone to Gebel Katrina (see map II). (3) T2, T3, and T4: via helicopters flying within a corridor at the times and according to a flight profile agreed to by the joint commission. Helicopters will be checked by the UN force at landing sites outside the perimeter of the installations. Israel will inform the UN force at least one hour in advance of each intended movement to and from the installations.

J. Israel shall-be entitled to "" evacuate sick and wounded and summon medical experts and medical teams at any time after giving immediate notice to the UN 3. The details of the above principles and all other matters of this article will be handled by the joint commis-4. (Note: Duration of these installations will be dealt with after the delegation agree on language concerning possible sub-stages of

Article V — Disposition of installations and military barriers

Disposition of installations and military barriers will be determined by the parties in accordance with the following guidelines: A. Up to three weeks before Israeli withdrawal from any area, the joint commission will arrange for Israeli and Egyptian liaison teams to conduct a joint inspection of all appropriate installations to agree upon condition of structures and articles which will be transferred to Egyptian control and to arrange for such transfer. Israel will declare, at that time, its plans for disposition of installations and articles within the installations. B. Israel undertakes to transfer to Egypt all agreed infrastructure. utilities, and installations intact, inter alia, airfields, roads, pumping stations, and ports. Israel will present to Egypt the information necessary for the maintenance and operation of these facilities. Egyptian technical teams will be permitted to observe and familiarize themselves with the operation of these facilities for a period of up to two weeks prior to transfer. C. When Israel relinquishes Israeli military water points near El Arish and El Tor, Egyptian technical teams will assume control of those installations and ancillary equip-ment in accordance with an orderly transfer process arranged beforehand by the joint commission. Egypt undertakes to makes its best efforts to continue to make available at all water supply points the normal quantity of water currently available, up to the time Israel withdraws behind the international boundary.

D. Israel undertakes to remove or destroy all military barriers, including obstacles and mine-fields, in the areas and adjacent waters from which it withdraws, according to the following concept:

(1) Military barriers will be cleared first from areas near population, roads, and major instaliations and utilities.

(2) For those obstacles and minefields which cannot be removed or destroyed prior to Israeli withdrawal, Israel will provide detailed maps to Egypt and the UN through the joint commission not later than 15 days before entry of the UN forces into the affected areas.

(3) Israel will allow Egyptian military engineers access to those areas before UN entry to conduct barrier clearance operations in accordance with Egyptian plans to be submitted prior to implementation.

Article VI Surveillance activities

1. Aerial surveillance activities during the withdrawal will be carried out as follows:

A. Both parties request the U.S. to continue airborne surveillance flights in support of this treaty until the completion of final withdrawal.

B. Flight profiles will cover the limited forces zones to monitor the limitations on forces and ar-Israeli forces have withdrawn from the areas described in Article II of Annex I and that these forces thereafter remain behind their lines. Special inspection flights may be flown at the request of either party or of the UN.

C. Only the main elements in the military organizations of each party, as described in this annex, will be reported as agreed by both parties, and in ... rmation will be disseminated to Egypt, Israel, and the UN directly and in the same for-

Tel Aviv Hapoel upsets Ramat Gan by 77-74

By STEVE KAPLAN Post Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. - Tel Aviv Maccahi opened the semi-final round of the National Basketball League's first division playoffs Monday night with a predictable 113-77 rout of Yagur Ha'emek Hapoel, but the big story was Tel Aviv Haposi's upset of Remat Gan Hapoel, 77-74.

Tel Aviv Hapoel had to do without the services of top playmaker Barry Leibowitz and came into the game with two of their rebounders playing with injuries. The action at Yad Eliahu began with Tel Aviv's John Willis' superb shooting display, as he hit on 11 of 13 shots from the field and scored 28 points in the first half. His effort propelled Tel Aviv to a 41-39 halftime lead, while favoured Ramat Gan seldom played like the team which took second place during the regular season.

After the intermission Hapoel continued to build its advantage until it led 61-51 with seven minutes left in the game. At that point Ramat Gan went into a full court press and pulled ahead, 70-68 with two minutes remaining. Tel Aviv then used a series of three-point plays by Pinhas Hoses to pull the game out 77-74. The best-of-three series will continue next Sunday at Yad Eliahu.

Regular season champions Tel Aviv Maccabi journeyed to the north to play Yagur Ha'emek Hapcel and were met with little resistance in running up a 118-77 win. The Maccabians dominated play from the out-set, led by Jim Boatwright's 34 points and Lou Silver's 19. The next game in the series will be on Monday at Yad

Ashdod club captures badminton titles

By JACK LEON Post Sports Reporter

ASHDOD. - The Ashdod municipal club made a clean sweep of the top honours at lest week's second National Junior Badminton championships here, with its players winning all eight singles and doubles

More than 50 of the country's top boys and girls from seven of the Israel Badminton Association's (IBA) 12 clubs competed in the daylong event. They qualified for the meet in local trials, in which a total of 120 youngsters took part.

The tournament's main title, the boys' under-18 singles, was won by Nissim Duk. The 17-year-old beat defending champion Yitzhak Serrouya, 16, by 15-8, 15-9 in the all-Ashdod final. In winning he avenged his last-round defeat by Serrouya in the same event last year.

But Serrouya had the consolation of winning the under-16 singles, defeating his clubmate Avraham Hass 15-7, 15-5 in the final. In addition Serrouya and Duk retained their under-18 doubles crown. The Serrouya family collected a third gold medal, when Yitzhak's sister Bruria won the girls' under-12 aingles.

A similar success was achieved by the Ashdod club's Moses family, with Reuven taking the under-12 singles crown, as well as the under-14 doubles with Jackie Cohen.

350 youth to play basketball tourney

TEL AVIV (Itim). — Some 350 boy and girl basketballers are coming to Israel to take part in the Inter-national High School Basketball Championships, to be held in the first week of April, the organizers said here Monday.

Twenty-four teams will be playing, from 12 countries — Austria, Belgium, Denmark, England, Finland, France, Holland, Ireland, Luxembourg, Norway, Sweden, and Israel. Several other countries that were to have taken part have cancelled, among them Yugoslavia, the U.S. and Turkey.

Israel is one of the founders of the International Federation for Secondary School Sports, and has in the past played host to the federation's volleyball and handball championships. The basketball tournament will be its biggest venture in this field so far.

The matches will be played at the Wingate Institute near Netanya, Kibbutz Ma'agan Michael, Gan Shmuel, Daliya, and Haifa. Entry will be free except to the final, in Haifa, for which tickets will cost IL10.

Taiwan will discuss Chinese joining IOC

TAIPEI (Reuter). — Taiwan yester-day agreed to hold talks with the International Olympic Committee (IOC) on the question of Chinese membership, but refused to sit down for discussions with representatives from Peking.

Shen Chia-ming, president of the Taiwan Olympic Committee, sent a cable to IOC president Lord Killanin following a meeting of the local organization. Killanin had requested Taiwan to send a delegation to Lausanne to discuss the question with officials from China.

Int'l games to focus on gymnastics

By PAUL KOHN Post Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Gymnastics are shaping as the centre piece of the 11th International Hapoel games in May, and already all 10,000 tickets have been sold for the display by star gymnasts of eight nations at the Yad Eliahu sports palace here.

The Scandinavian countries especially will be especially prominent in the May 5 gymnastics showpiece.

Eight countries - Austria. Belgium, Finland, France, Holland, Italy, Switzerland and Israel - will compete in the official International Workers Sports gymnastic events, to be held in Haifa at the time of the Hapoel games. Other gymnasts from the U.S., Canada, Sweden, West Germany, Portugal, Norway and Rumania will join them for Hapoel games competition and exhibitions. Registration for the games, from May 2 to 8, shows a German delegation of 90 athletes, with the promised inclusion of World, Olympic and European medal winners. The 75-strong U.S. contingent will also include American champions. The Swiss will come with 125 athletes,

Hapoel headquarters announced. With revised lists of entries reaching Hapoel here almost daily, the games are almost certain to become the largest sports meet yet held in Israel. Competitors from 28 countries are expected to contest 16

No one knows for sure how many athletes are broadening their medical horizons beyond the trainers' room, into the offices of psychiatrists. But a Boston physician who has treated pro athletes in several sports, says some players are now willing to probe below surface problems to remedy their difficulties on the field.

"Success, and all pro athletes are successful to some degree, is not an easy thing to tolerate," says Dr. Stanley Cheren, the head of psy-chosomatic medicine at University Hospital here.

"There's a lot of guilt that sometimes an athlete just can't face up to his refusal to perform under

For obvious reasons, he refuses to divulge the names of his athletic patients, some of whom are active professionals.

New Year in the Baha'i faith

Unfettered search for truth

the domed roof and give the shrine its distinctive appearance were made in Holland by a process of fire-glazing over gold leaf, and cost only about $1 each at the time.

ONE OF THE followers of the Bab, a Persian nobleman, Hussayn Alo. who was imprisoned by the authorities along with other Babis. experienced a divine revelation while in prison and in 1863 declared himself to be the prophet, whose coming the Bab had predicted.

He became known as Baha'ullah, the "Glory of God," and considered his mission "to inaugurate an era of righteousness and peace that will be hailed as the consummation of all previous divine dispensations, and to initiate a new cycle in the religious history of mankind."

He, too, was persecuted and spent most of his adult life in prison and exile, dying in 1892 near Acre, where he was buried. The shrine of the Baha'ullah, established there and known as "Bahji," is the holiest place in the world for Baha'is.

Baha'uliah was succeeded as Guardian of the Faith by his son, Abdul Baha. In 1909, Baha wrote about the Jews: "The abasement suffered by Israel for 2,500 years will now be turned into everlasting glory to such an extent that it will excite the envy of its friends and its

At the turn of the century, when Theodor Herzl was writing in his diary, "At the Zionist Congress in Basie, I founded the Jewish State," Abdul Baha wrote: "In this cycle, Israel will be gathered in the Holy Land, and the Jewish people who are scattered to the East and West, South and North, will be assembled together. All Palestine will become

THE HOLY LAND has been the international centre of the Baha'i religion and a focal point of pilgrimage for members of the faith since the exile of Baha'ullah to Acre.

The Baha'i faith teaches that religious truth is progressive, not final; that God educates the human race through a series of prophets who have appeared throughout history and will always appear to guide the destinles of men. Moses, Zoroaster, Buddha, Jesus, Mohammed, the Bab and Baha'ullah are among the divine educators who give the world the same fundamental teachings but reveal laws and principles suited to the needs of the

Abdul Baha, photographed in

The last Guardian of the Faith, Shoghi Effendi Rabani, who was appointed to the office in the last will of his grandfather Abdul Baha and who dled in 1957, summarized the aims and purposes of the faith: "The Baha'i's faith upholds the unity of God, recognizes the unity of His prophets and inculcates the principles of the oneness and wholeness of the entire human race.

هكذا مس للعمل

"It proclaims the necessity and in-evitability of the unification of mankind, asserts that it is gradually approaching and claims that nothing short of the transmuting spirit of God can ultimately succeed in bringing it about.

'It moreover enjoins upon its followers the primary duty of an unfettered search after truth, condemns all manner of prejudice and superstition, declares the purpose of religion to be the promotion of amity and concord, proclaims its essential harmony with science, and recognizes it as the foremost agency for the pacification and the orderly progress of human society.

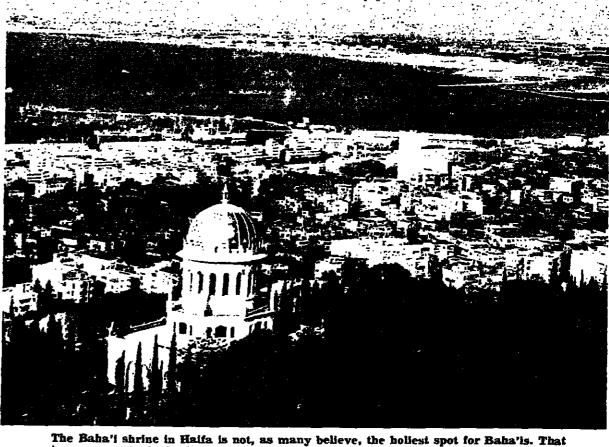

'The Baha'i faith unequivocally maintains the principle of equal rights, opportunities and privileges for men and women, insists on compulsory education, prescribes monogamy, discourages divorce, emphasizes the strict obedience to one's government, exalts to the level of worship any work performed in the spirit of service, urges the creation or selection of an auxiliary international language, and delineates the outlines of those institutions that must establish and perpetuate the general peace of mankind."

AFTER THE DEATH of Shoghi Rabbani, who had no children, the leadership of the religion passed, in accordance with the writings of the founders, to an elected group of nine members who make up the Universal House of Justice.

The election takes place in Haifa every five years at a convention of representatives of the 90,000 Baha'i centres throughout the world. Each centre elects nine representatives to their country's National Baha'i Assembly, and they serve as the delegates to the Haifa conven-tion. The first Universal House of Justice was elected in April, 1963, and the most recent election took place at Haifa in April, 1978. Near the Mt. Carmel shrine, the building of the International Baha'i Archives was completed in 1957. Constructed in the classical Greek architectural style in white, imported Italian marble, with a green tiled roof, it is a private museum of Baha'i relics and historical matters.

In the large, formal gardens surrounding the buildings (incorrectly called the Persian Gardens), which honour goes to the burial place in Acre of Baha'ullah, the Baha'i prophet whose name means "Glory of God."

are open to the public, there are four white marble monuments. They are the tombstones erected over burial places of some of the immediate members of the Baha'ullah's family. The lamps, eagles and peacock or naments scattered through the Baha'i gardens have no special significance.

TWO YEARS AGO, work was started on the building that will house the Universal House of Justice, the supreme administrative body of the religion.

The $20m. structure, completely covered in white Greek marble and surrounded by an 11-metre-high collonade of ornately carved marble columns, will be completed in 1980. It is the third building in the Baha'i complex on Mt. Carmel, each of them located in accordance with specific instructions from the founders. In time, the complex will have two more buildings.

From the Universal House of Justice it will be possible to look out over the monument to the daughter of the Baha'ullah in the Baha'i garden across the Haifa Bay to the Bahji shrine in Acre. In April, 1971, the Israel government granted the Baha'is official recognition as a religion. The group does not carry out any missionary activities in Israel. BUT A DARK CLOUD now hangs over the World Centre. The Haifa Municipality has granted a licence to a local contractor for the construction of a 26-storey apartment building in Rehov Hillel. When it is completed, the apartment building will partially block the view of the Universal House of Justice.

The recently elected mayor, Arieh Gurel, told reporters this month that he was unable to do anything about the licence, which had been granted by a previous city administration.

From the strictly legal viewpoint, the mayor may be right. But to many Haifa residents the attitude is incomprehensible. Indeed, two councillors, one from the mayor's own party, have tabled questions on the matter.

I still sent Robbi off to hospital for an X-ray to check that the bones were indeed back in their correct alignment and also to make sure that no fracture had been sustained from the initial injury.

DISLOCATION of a joint occurs when the ends of the bones that meet to form it lose complete contact with each other. Usually, as in the case above, the cause is some severe or particularly forceful trauma to the oint. Lesser trauma may bring about partial dislocation, or subluxation, of a joint. The normal stability of a joint depends on several factors; among shape of the bony ends making up the joint and the actual tissues ligaments and muscles surrounding the joint and thus bracing it.

The most common site in the body for traumatic dislocations is the upper limb. In adults, for example, dislocation of a shoulder is not terribly uncommon either after a heavy fall on the outstretched hand or following a severe direct blow to the shoulder area. The upper part of the arm bone above the elbow, the humerus, is forced out of the shoulder joint, usually forwards, and, as a result, the normal round contour of the joint is altered.
Such a dislocation must be put back as soon as possible. This can generally be done without much difficulty although an anaesthetic is often necessary to allow adequate relaxation of the surrounding tissues and pain relief. After a few days of resting the area, the patient can begin activating his shoulder again.

Usually that is the end of the story. Sometimes the damage sustained to the tissues around the joint remains and predisposes to further dislocations, often after relatively minor trauma or sometimes even if the unlucky individual just raises his arm sideways and outwards from his body. In such cases surgery may be advised to prevent recurrences. The operation undertaken involves fixing the muscles around the joint to limit those movements of the joint "encouraging" dislocation,

THE ELBOW may also be the site of dislocation, both in adults and children, and again the story is usually one of a heavy fall on the hand. In this case, the two forearm bones are pushed backwards at the elbow behind the lower end of the humerus. Principals of treatment are similar to those for a dislocated shoulder, but recurrent dislocation is not usually a problem afterwards.

Much more common here is a condition in young children often called 'pulled elbow." This is a subluxation of the elbow end of one of the two forearm bones, the radius. I see one or two cases every year, and the classic story is that the child has been lifted by his wrists or that his wrist has been pulled with some — in crossing a busy road, for example. After this the child complains of pain at the elbow, and there is restriction of movement at the joint. Fortunately, the condition can be corrected by replacing the displaced bone in a simple manoeuvre that can be done in the office. Recurrence is unlikely as long as the child's wrists are respected thereafter.

A special type of dislocation is con-genital dislocation of the hip (CDH). vhich is sometimes discovered in babies. All parents will know that their infants are routinely checked for CDH both in hospital and afterwards at well-baby clinics, but the condition merits an article by itself at a future date.

ON MY NEXT visit to the kibbutz I learnt from Tsilla, the nurse, that Robbi's X-ray check had been satisfactory: no fractures and the finger bones were back in their usual place. Apart from some pain-killing drugs for a day or two, no other treatment had been necessary. Indeed, as I passed the football pitch. on my way home that afternoon I saw that Robbi, too, was back in his usual place - in the soccer team.

SOLUTIONS TO TODAY'S PUZZLE TOMORROW

TEL AVIV. - Beno M. Gitter, benker, international businessman and philanthropist, has for the second time in his career assumed the position of adviser to the Finance blinister. Owing to his many business interests in Israel, the appointment had to be approved by the Attorney-General. Citter at one time also served as adviser to the late Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir.

In an interview with The Jerusalem Fost Gitter spelled out the details of his programme for raising capital for Israeli industrial enterprices. "This pest summer I had the surprise of my life when I made a lengthy trio in various countries on the American continent.

"I discovered investors ready to invest in shares of Israeli companies registered on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange, rather than becoming direct partners in the enterprises in question," explained Gitter.

Based on the findings during the exploratory trip, Gitter has proposed and received Treasury approval for a novel plan for investing in Israeli incustrial enterprises. According to the plan forsign investors would receive priority in ordering shares of Aviv Stock Exchange. Institutional investors generally may order up to 40 per cent of any new issue. Under the new plan up to 60 per cent of the new issue would be made available to institutional and foreign investors. This would eliminate the necessity of having the order filled on an allocation basis, which is often the case when an issue is oversubscribed.

The foreign investors wishing to participate in a given issue would form a foreign corporation specifically for this purpose. Shares purchased by such a corporation would be placed in trust with a local trust company for at least one year. These shares would later be released for sale, if this was desired.

The foreign investor would also have the benefit of the conventional underwriters discount.

Gitter was convinced that with the help of his plan millions of dollars of foreign capital could be made available to Israel industry. He has set aside three months this summer to tour the Americas to enlist investment funds. He already has a number of propositions which he will discuss with prospective investors but prefers, at this juncture, not to go into details.

Gitter is an inveterate optimist and is confident that he can initiate investments running into millions of dollars. It should be remembered that it was Gitter, during the Sapir era, who almost single-handedly raised $25m. to launch the Clal investment company on a major ex-pansion programme. "Only this August I was able to secure a new $4.5m. investment in Clal. The shares have done inordinately well and I know that the investor is more than satisfied," he pointed out. Asked whether he believed investments in the shares of Israel industry would maintain their dollar value and also grow Gitter explained that this should be the case in financial floatations in which the country's major banks participate.

GENEVA (Reuter). — Industrialised and Third World negotiators agreed early yesterday on the basic elements of a $750m. international fund to stabilise commodity prices. The agreement marks a major breakt rough in the "North-South" dialogue on economic cooperation efter two years of slow-moving bargaining. The 101-nation conference approved a resolution setting out the capital structure, financial resources and voting procedure for the fund. It will serve as a central pool of finance for price stabilisation measures undertaken by internarional commodity organisations associated with it.

But the U.S. said it did not accept the voting pattern which gave developing countries the strongest voice or the fund's management body. The fund's East European communist partners also objected to the voting system and to what they described as "unjust allocation of financial burdens."

The voting structure gives 47 per cent of the total votes to developing countries as a group, 42 per cent to non-communist industrialised states, eight per cent to East European communist countries and three per cent to China.

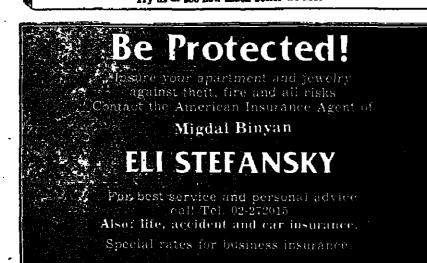

The resolution, adopted after intensive private negotiations throughout last weekend and all yesterday, called for a meeting of an interim committee to draft articles of agreement setting up the fund.

The resolution slipulated that the negotiating conference should reconvene before the end of this year to formally adopt the fund's articles of agreement.

Truckers threaten further strike over credit issue

By LYNDA GOLDMAN Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV .- After the 24-hour work stoppage by some 4,000 truckers yesterday and following an emergency meeting, the Trucking Board decided not to cooperate with the public committee set up by the Transport Ministry to supervise credit allocations for new trucks.

A spokesman for the board told The Post that it was decided that the trucking firms represented by the board would take further action against the Transport Minister's decision to form the public committee. Longer strikes, he said, would probably result.

Transport Minister Haim Landau issued a statement c'alling the strike "irresponsible".

The public committee, formed last week by the minister, is headed by former District Court judge Chaim

Landau said that credit would be approved by the committee on the basis of the following criteria among others. An applicant must have owned a truck for at least one year; he must have filed an income tax return and kept a record of all his transactions; including those for VAT.

The Trucking Board represents about half of all the operators of heavy trucks (ten-ton and over) in the country.

In Haifa port meanwhile, citrus loading was seriously slowed down yesterday by the trucking strike, which prevented the fruit from being shipped from the packing houses. Instead of the regular 240,000 cases a day, less than 150,000 were loaded from stocks still in the port. Today's loading will also fall short some 50,-

Other cargo handling operations in the port were not affected. The ports spokesman said that cargoes unloaded from the ships were temporarily stored in warehouses, pending the resumption of trucking today.

"IN SPITE OF THE current slump in the diamond industry it is expected that diamond exports to Japan will grow by some 30 per cent and reach the $200m. mark in 1979," stated Moshe Schnitzer, president of the Israel Diamond Exchange upon his return from Tokyo. Schnitzer's trip to Tokyo was aimed at creating closer ties between the Israeli industry and Japanese diamond dealers and jewellers. Japan is currently importing from israel one-third of its total purchases of polished diamonds. According to Schnitzer the Japanese press and media exhibited interest in the Israeli diamond industry. An organization for the promotion of diamond sales was established during Schnitzer's visit to Tokyo. At its head will be Tokura Eigi, past Japanese 'ambassador to Israel.

Inflation haunts U.S. industry boom

U.S. is in the middle of a confusing and peculiarly isolated boom that's causing unexpected inflation headaches

All the signs are there, purchasing agents scrambling to lock up supplies of raw materials by ordering far in advance of when they want delivery, companies beating the bushes for new workers and prices shooting up in competitive markets.

No one foresaw any of this, least of all the Carter Administration economists who early last autumn were putting together an antiinflation plan based on a gradual slowing of economic growth. Now the industrial boomlet has become a major threat to Carter's wage-price standards.

Alfred Kahn. President Carter's chief of the inflation fight, believes that for "something like the last six months" the U.S. economy has been "overheated '

Citing recent large price increases not just for food and energy products, but on everything from iron and steel scrap (up 6.8 per cent in February) and cement (up almost 6 per cent in one month), Kahn concluded, "what we obviously see here is an overheated economy.

Can the wage-price standards contain the surge? Kahn is not particularly sanguine. "No one ever pretended that voluntary — or even mandatory — standards can effectively restrain inflation when aggregate demand is excessive," he told the Economic Club of Chicago last week.

Virtually every economist who is willing to put out a forecast still thinks the economy is going to cool off. In fact, the big difference among forecasters at this point is whether the drop in growth will turn into a recession and, if so, how soon and how severe that recession will be. And some economists believe the industrial boom ultimately will delay the recession and make it deeper than it otherwise would have been. The Administration expects a slower economy later this year, but as Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal reiterated last week, it still maintains there will not be a

So Carter and his advisers are left with this dilemma: unless every

The U.S. Government said yesterday that profits of American corporations increased 26.4 per cent last year, the most in nearly three decades, in what administration officials said was a "catastrophe" for the U.S. antiinflation programme.

It also reported that the American economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, expanded at a 6.9 per cent rate in the final three months of the year, up from the 6.4 per cent estimated previously. The gain in GNP for the year was an even 4 per cent.

The Commerce Department said corporate profits before taxes totalled $225.3b. in the final three months of 1978, up $19.9b., or 9.7 per cent, over the third forecaster is wrong, the boomlet should be short-lived. But right now there's an inflationary industrial bubble that could destroy the wageprice effort. Is there a way to prick the bubble without bringing on a recession?

Financial analysts say much of the increase in profits results from inventory gains caused by inflation, and does not significantly benefit the corporations.

There is the question of exactly what might be done. The budget numbers can't be changed significantly in the short run. Monetary policy can be, but the effects of higher interest rates and less credit availability on the economy are usually felt only aft. some months. Neither is much go for pricking bubbles.

The strongest signs of a boom a in orders. New orders from manufa turers jumped 1.9 per cent January alone. That included a ? per cent increase in the key no defence capital goods category, at a huge, 18.4 per cent surge primary metals orders. Those gali came on top of an 11 per cent i crease in new orders in the four quarter of 1978.

Inventories in manufacturing a rising as capital goods production e pands, which usually means an i crease in the value of work

Keeping pace with all the Re orders has meant some very large i creases in employment in some i dustries, and a very rapid expansi of total hours worked.

Last week, the latest survey po the Commerce Department show investment plans up 11 per cent ov last year's actual spending, with e porate officials expecting about 8 p cent of that to cover inflation, leavi only about a 3 per cent increase real outlays.

One result of the surge in industr demand is that it is taking vendors the companies that sell goods other businesses — longer and long to fill orders. A monthly survey purchasing agents found that 69 cent of them were experienci slower deliveries of goods in Janua than a month earlier. In Februa that jumped to 77 per cent, a le last reached during the boom of 18

Putting all this together, econom Otto Eckstein of Data Resource Inc., still thinks the odds are to recession in the second half of year. 'There is now an increas chance of 1979 continuing on stronger growth trajectory, prod ing either a deeper 1980 re — if we are very lucky — a soft i ding," he said.

Oil producers put on surcharges

BAHRAIN (Reuter). — Saudi Arabia is expected to follow other OPEC countries and add a surcharge to its crude oil exports next month, oil industry sources said yesterday. "They don't want to do it, but they have to because of pressure from other OPEC members.," the sources told Reuters.

The Saudi surcharge, expected to be between one dollar and $1.20 a barrel, will be decided after next week's OPEC consultative meeting in Geneva.

The size of the surcharge is likely to be influenced by the level of Saudi crude production, which temporarily rose by one million barrels a day above the country's 8.5 million barrel ceiling, to meet part of a worldwide oil shortage caused by the halt of Iranian supplies.

The United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Kuwait and Libya already charge premium, and Venezuela has said it will impose a $1.20 surcharge from April 1.

The OPEC meeting in Geneva next Monday was called mainly to discuss the oil market, turned volatile by the daily loss of about five million barrels of Iranian crude. The oil ministers will also discuss the role of international oil companies, accused of profiteering from the Iranian cuts. Meanwhile, the Soviet Union has increased by 9 per cent the price it charges Finland for its crude oil, the head of Finland's state-run oil company said yesterday.

Uolevi Raade, who just returned from Moscow, said he hoped the increase would be temporary and app ly just to imports during March, but he said he feared the increase would be made permanent if the Opec countries increase their prices on the world market.

Finland imports about 7 million tons of oil from the Soviet Union each EXPORTS OF TOASTERS produced by Emka have risen by 50 per cent and stand at $800,000. The company expects to double its exports this year. A company spokesman attributed the success of the Israeli toaster to its relatively low price.

Money flows to Luxembourg

LUXEMBOURG (Reuter). - Luxembourg, the smallest state in the European Economic Community, is rapidly becoming a major financial centre.

Anxious to encourage the trend, the Grand Duchy last year introduced measures to make it more attractive and, according to banking commission figures, it now accounts for about one quarter of Eurocurrency credits worldwide.

Its growing role reflects the fact that many banks here not only take the credits granted by their parent banks, domiciled in other countries, on to their books but increasingly syndicate credits from Luxembourg hemselves.

Banks from neighbouring West Germany are by far the most impportant national group in the country. Last year they accounted for over 42 per cent of the roughly 160b. marks equivalent balance sheet total of banks here. Thirty three per cent of all Laxein-

Ombudsmen's convention planned for Jerusalem Jerusalem Post Reporter

Nine state or provincial ombudsmen from around the world will arrive in Jerusalem on Sunday to prepare the Second International Ombudamen Convention, which is scheduled to take place here next

The complaints commissioners, led by Dr. Randall Ivany, the ombudsman of the Canadian province of Alberta, will be the guests of Israel's ombudaman, Dr. Yitzhak Nebenzahl, who had suggested Jerusalem as the site of the convention. The steering committee members who are preparing the convention come from Alaska, Denmark, France, West Germany, Australia, Fiji and Canada. They will meet with President Yitzhak Navon, Knesset Speaker Yitzhak Shamir, Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek and other dignitaries and tour the country, in addition to discussing the details of organizing their conference.

THE ISRAEL POUND continued to be devalued against the U.S. dollar. Yesterday the pound fell by another 10 agorot. So far in March the pound has been devalued by more than seven per cent. Financial observers now suggest that the rate of devaluation may rival the rise of the Consumer Price Index in the

Triumph and pretence

"THE GOVERNMENT is entitled to make concessions. But it is not entitled to present a concession as though it were not a concession, nor to claim that it only seems to be a concession."

This telling criticism by Labour leader Peres of Premier Begin's defence of the peace treaty with Egypt in the Knesset yesterday no doubt fell on deaf official ears. But it will have struck a responsive chord in the minds of many citizens who strongly favour peace, even the necessarily defective peace now concluded with Egypt, but who refuse to see shining virtue in every dire necessity.

Reluctance to admit failure may be characteristic of most political leaders everywhere. Mr. Begin, however, seems to have made it, and without good reason, into a hallmark.

The entire record of Mr. Begin's negotiation of the peace with Mr. Sadat has been, on Israel's side, a strange tale of militant rhetoric soon fizzling out to leave but a column of smoke with which to screen the facts from the public at home.

Apart from suggesting a rather low opinion of the political understanding of Mr. Begin's countrymen, this unedifying practice has also served no useful purpose. For the end result of the Premier's diplomatic labours has been, as it was bound to be with the required dose of concessions, a peace treaty with

None but lunatics on the fringes of right and left would denv Mr. Begin this personal triumph. In parliament yesterday, while voicing their approval in principle of the treaty, even avowed party foes handsomely acknowledged the nation's debt to the Prime Minister. Apparently, this cannot satisfy Mr. Begin. While he admitted towards the end of his lengthy, and profusely heckled, address that "we've made some heavy sacrifices" in securing this "breach in the ring of (Arab) hostility," the burden of his message was that his government had obtained, with but trifling semantic changes, most everything it had bargained for.

This can only be a pretence. The interpretation of Article 6 (ii) and 6(v) to which the cabinet gave its assent last week, on Mr. Begin's warm recommendation, is virtually indistinguishable from that which the Premier had publicly, and repeatedly, declared to vacate the treaty of all meaning and, indeed, to convert it into a "pact of war."

The accepted version, too, neutralizes any claim on Israel's part that Egypt's obligations under the treaty are independent of the progress of the autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza; and that they take precedence over Egypt's warlike undertakings to other Arab states.

It is arguable that this concession, too, was inevitable — as another heavy sacrifice for the sake of peace. What cannot be contended is that it is nothing of the sort.

Yet the illusionism that marked Mr. Begin's assessment of the past, also informed — and this is of even greater importance — his estimate of the future.

Forcefully contradicting last week's predictions by Egyptian Foreign Minister Khalil, Mr. Begin stated emphatically that there would be no return ever to the 1949 armistice lines, no redivision ever of Jerusalem, and no Palestinian state ever.

The issue of Jerusalem apart, this was decidedly not a reassuring statement. For under the treaty with Egypt, now up for signature. Israel has committed itself to withdrawal right up to the armistice lines. Can the thought be seriously entertained that on the other fronts Israel would be able to hold on forever to the 1967 cease-fire lines?

Neither the facts of international life, nor the facts on the position. This country can still claim title to new, "secure and recognized boundaries" that are not synonymous with either the 1949 or the 1967 frontiers. But this title can be lost by treating Palestinian autonomy as a device to ensure permanent Israeli overlordship in the territories.

Sooner or later, Mr. Begin will have to give way on his present (which is already markedly different from his erstwhile) concept of autonomy.

He will have to do so if only because Israel's army cannot hold indefinitely in thrall a large Arab population, whose "legitimate rights" have already been recognized at Camp David, and which does not wish to be ruled by Israel. But he will also have to do so because any other course of action would be inconsistent with Israel's own sense of justice.

To believe otherwise is only self delusion. And the great bounty of peace, however still limited in scope, may be in danger of being lost through such delusion.

ESSENTIALLY what one seeks from Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir is a convincing vindication of the past four months of marking time. Tamir, as much as anyone in the cabinet (save the Prime Minister, who naturally bears a special responsibility), was responsible for the stonewalling which some view as legalistic haggling but which the government maintains was a defence of vital principles without which there could have been no treaty.

Midway through the Blair House talks in October, Tamir was the moving spirit behind the famous "instructions" which the cabinet gave the Israeli negotiators. These included an order to obtain a clause in the body of the treaty that would counterbalance the references to the Camp David Framework and the comprehensive settlement in the draft preamble. That clause became the celebrated Article Six (ii) and Tamir thereafter led the dogged fight to protect its content from the "interpretative notes" which Egypt introduced in an effort to weaken its

Tamir, a leading trial lawyer before he became Justice Minister, was also in the forefront of the drawn-out battle for Article Six (v) (the "priority of obligations" clause), and against the "target date" which Egypt demanded right up until the last round, which would have linked the treaty to the implementation of the Palestinian

Was it all worthwhile? That is the question that many of us inevitably ask upon reading the convoluted for mulae which were eventually agreed upon to overcome these problems.

TAMIR'S ANSWER is an unequivocal yes, and, cogent advocate that he is, he follows up with many persussive arguments.

He concedes that ideally it is "very desirable to conclude any agreement quickly — for political and paychological reasons." But he places the entire blame on Egypt for the delay that set in after the Blair House negotiators had hammered out the treaty text by early in November.

The Israeli cabinet, setting aside a number of reservations over the preamble, announced its readiness on November 11 to sign the treaty text and to continue negotiating on the "side letter." President Carter, Tamir recalls, was "very pleased" at that decision when Premier Begin telephoned it to him.

The decision was not, says Tamir, a rejection of the "side letter" which in turn prompted Egyptian rejections of parts of the treaty text. "It wasn't like that at all," says Tamir.

"The letter was not a direct outgrowth of Camp David. The cabinet therefore said Israel would be ready to continue negotiating over it, and genuinely expected that agreement would be reached on it soon,"

But (quite separately) there was a reassessment in Cairo; the Egyptians demanded that Article Six (ii) and (v) be omitted or changed, and that they be given a liaison presence in Gaza. And there were Egyptian public statements on the date" which Israel could not accept.

"... The Egyptian tactic all the time since then was to 'put in new goats." (This is a reference to the Hassidic tale of the goat and the crowded housing problem which has often been cited during the treaty negotiations — D.L.)

"There wasn't a moment from that stage until the end of the negotiations when the Egyptians said, We are ready to sign'," Tamir continues. Israel for its part remained ready to sign the Blair House treaty text without interpretative embellishment (though not the "side letter"). THE POSITION of the cabinet majority, to which he adhered, says Tamir, was "to strive to reach the peace agreement with all our might - but not at any price." On one flank there were ministers who did not consider the remaining issues of dispute important enough to thwart the peace. At the other extreme, there were ministers who were consistently uncomfortable with the Camp David settlement.

But for the mainstream, led by the Prime Minister, Article Six (ii) and (v), the "target date," the question

Tamir for the defence

Diplomatic Correspondent DAVID LANDAU maintains that Justice Minister SHMUEL TAMIR was just as responsible as anyone else for the lengthy peace negotiations. In this interview, Tamir indicates that drawing out the negotiations had multiple issue - all of these were seen as 'vital ingredients of the peace package. Without them there would have been no peace treaty. The cabinet, the Knesset and the nation would have rejected a peace with these ingredients missing. It would have been a peace imposed by Egyp-believes. "We have demonstrated clearly our enthusiasm for peace, our flexibility and realism. But at the same time, we have shown that there are certain 'red lines' beyond which we simply will not go...

Tamir stresses that, though a lawyer, he does not exaggerate the value of legal formulae. "I know their value is limited," he says. "But they are the basis, the framework. In building, for instance, you cast great concrete walls by pouring the substance into filmsy wooden frames. The concrete hardens and the frames are removed. But without the wooden frames - you can't mould the con-

"Similarly with the treaty. It will be the political realities that will uitimately determine the course of relations between Israel and Egypt. I know that as well as anyone. But there must be a formal framework in which to channel those relations. And care must be taken to avoid misunderstandings.

"In 30 years of legal practice, I always said to clients when I finished drawing up a contract, I hope you'll never look at it'..." But that does not mean that contracts, or treaties, should not be scrupulously and meticulously drafted.

Paradoxically, Tamir drew much encouragement from the fact that the Egyptians obviously felt the same way, and fought for every jot and tittle just as tenaciously as the Israelis. "It shows they took it seriously... When a client says to his lawver. 'Just write in whatever you want,' that means he does not intend to refer to the contract, or be boy by it, in the future."

TAMIR PLAYS DOWN the fact to he and fellow cabinet-lawyer Mos Nissim were unhappy with the fit compromise wording ("shall not i) construed as contravening" install of the original U.S. proposal "d not derogate from") in the "agri minute" to Article Six. The cabi majority decided during Carte visit to accept this formulation. Tamir says Israel can live with because "it does not rule out our

Peace treaty appendices and letters

Article VI(2)

The provisions of Article VI shall not be construed in contradiction to the provisions of the Framework for Peace in the Middle East agreed at Camp David.

The foregoing is not to be construed as contravening the provisions of Article VI(2) of the treaty, which reads as follows:

"The parties undertake to fulfil in good faith their obligations under this treaty, without regard to action or inaction of any other party and independently of any instrument external to this treaty."

Article VI (5)

It is agreed by the parties that there is no assertion that this treaty prevails over other treaties or agreements or that other treaties or reements prevail over this treaty. The foregoing is not to be construed as contravening the provisions of Article VI (5) of the treaty, which reads

"Subject to Article 103 of the UN charter, in the event of a conflict between the obligations of the parties under the present treaty and any of their other obligations, the obligations under this treaty will be binding and implemented."

Agreed minute to Annex

The treaty of peace and Annex III thereto provide for establishing normal economic relations between the parties. In accordance therewith, it is agreed that such relations will include normal commercial sales of oil by Egypt to Israel, and that Israel shall be fully entitled to make bids for Egyptian-origin oil not needed for Egyptian domestic oil consumption. and Egypt and its oil concessionaires will entertain bids made by Israel on the same basis and terms as apply to other bidders for such oil.

Agreed minute to Annex I to treaty of peace

Article VI, paragraph B, of Annex I provides as follows:

"The parties shall agree on the nations from which the UN force and observers will be drawn. They will be drawn from nations other than those which are permanent members of the UN Security Council."

The parties will recognize that this provision gives each party a veto over the other's choice of nations. and that either of the parties could thereby stymie all efforts to establish an agreed UN force. They have therefore agreed as follows:

"With respect to the provisions of paragraph 3. Article VI, of Annex I, if no agreement is reached between the parties. they will accept and support a U.S. proposal concerning the composition of the UN force and observers,"

This letter confirms that Egypt and Israel have agreed as follows: The governments of Egypt and Israel recall that they concluded at Camp David and signed at the White House on September 17, 1978, the annexed documents entitled "A Framework for Peace in the Middle East agreed at Camp David" and "Framework for the Conclusion of a Peace Treaty between Egypt and Israel." For the purpose of achieving a comprehensive peace settlement in accordance with the abovementioned frameworks, Egypt and Israel will proceed with the implementation of those provisions relating to the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. They have agreed to start negotiations within a month after the exchange of the instruments of ratification of the peace treaty. In accordance with the 'Framework for Peace in the Middle East," the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan is invited to join the negotiations. The delegations of Egypt and Jordan may include Palestinians from the West Bank and Gaza Strip or other Palestinians as mutually agreed. The purpose of the negotiation shall be to agree, prior to the elections, on the modalities for establishing the elected selfgoverning authority (administrative council), define its powers and responsibilities, and agree upon other related issues. In the event Jordan decides not to take part in the negotiations, the negotiations will be held by Israel and Egypt.

The two governments agree to negotiate continuously and in good faith to conclude these negotiations at the earliest possible date. They also agree that the objective of the negotiations is the establishment of the self-governing authority in the West Bank and Gaza in order to provide full autonomy to the inhabitants.

Egypt and Israel set for themselves the goal of completing the negotiations within one year, so that elections will be held as expeditiously as possible after agreement has been reached between the parties. The self-governing authority referred to in the "Framework for Peace in the Middle East" will be es-tablished and inaugurated within one month after it has been elected, at which time, the transitional period of five years will begin. The Israeli military government and its civilian administration will be withdrawn, to be replaced by the self-governing authority, as specified in the "Framework for Peace in the Middle East." A withdrawal of Israeli armed forces will then take place and there will be a redeployment of the remaining Israeli forces into specified security locations.

This letter also confirms our understanding that the U.S. government will participate fully in all stages of negotiations.

Sincerely yours, Mohammed Anwar El-Sadat Menachem Begin

In each paragraph in which the expression "West Bank" appears, it is being and will be understood by the Government of Israel as Judea and Samaria.

Dear Mr. Prime Minister

I have received a letter from President Sadat that, within one month after Israel completes its withdrawal to the interim line in Sinai, as provided for in the treaty of peace between Egypt and Israel, Egypt will send a resident ambassador to Israel and will receive in Egypt a resident Israeli ambassador.

I would be grateful if you will confirm that this procedure will be agreeable to the government of ·Israel.

Dear President Sadat (Prime Minister Begin):

I wish to confirm to you that subtect to United States constitutional

In the event of an actual or threatened violation of the treaty of peace between Egypt and Israel, the U.S. will, on request of one or both of the parties, consult with the parties with respect thereto and will take such other action as it may deem appropriate and helpful to achieve compliance with the treaty.

The U.S. will conduct aerial monitoring as requested by the parties pursuant to Annex I of the treaty.

The U.S. believes the treaty provision for stationing of UN personnel in the designated limited force zone can and should be implemented by the UN Security Council. The U.S. will exert its utmost efforts to obtain the requisite action by the Security If the Security Council fails to establish and maintain the arrangements called for in the treaty, the president will be prepared to take those steps necessary to ensure the establishment and maintenance of an acceptable alternative multinational force. Sincerely, Jimmy Carter
